Orlando, Fla., Sept. 18, 2006 — Vonage Network Inc., a subsidiary of Vonage Holdings Corp. (NYSE: VG), a leading broadband telephony provider, today announced that it has extended its contract with 3PV[®] as its exclusive provider of third party verification services through 2009. This relationship further enhances Vonage's Local Number Portability (LNP) process.

Continuing its partnership with 3PV enables Vonage customers to expedite completions of the necessary paperwork required to port their number from their existing carrier. 3PV's patent-pending eLOA[®] product permits Vonage customers to complete a binding letter of agency online, during the subscriber's account orders process or via email from a customer care agent. eLOA allows for shorter provisioning time and less expensive transaction costs due to the elimination of document handling fees.

"Vonage initially selected 3PV as we recognized its track record and reputation as technology innovators and regulatory experts. In our 18 months working with them, they've lived up to that reputation," said Michael Tribolet, president of Vonage America Inc. "By leveraging proprietary technology, 3PV has improved our customer experience and increased our completion rates for verifications. Expanding our relationship is a win-win for Vonage."

"We are delighted that we'll be Vonage's verification partner for another three years," said 3PV's CEO, David Brinkman. "We enjoy working with a company that is as innovative as Vonage. They challenge us to push the envelope and to use our insight, imagination and innovation to solve complex business challenges. That's always been a hallmark of our company and a core part of what we do. Having a business partner who draws on that strength is very rewarding."
